PRODUCT PERFOMANCE

- Coffee makes about 39% of total sales
- Tea is a strong secondary revenue stream at about 28%
- Low-Contributing Categories (<2% Each) , Flavours, Loose Tea, Packaged Chocolate, Branded items
- Although coffee beans sell in small quantities, the profit margin is higher than that of drinking chocolate, which sells nearly three times as much stock.

RECCOMANDATIONS

Product Optimization

- First, make the most of your core products by investing in coffee and tea through upselling techniques and premium offerings.
- Second, use cross-selling to boost average transaction value by combining baked goods with drinks.
- Third, enhance or rationalize underperforming categories to maximize the product mix.

Marketing Strategy

- Launch loyalty programs, such as "Buy 5 coffees, get 1 free."
- Offer combo bargains in the morning (discounts on coffee and baked goods).
- Introduce subscription services (office workers' daily coffee pass).
